Ref: 121855_1054910 Date: 12 – 16 July 2027 Location: New York (USA) Fees: 7900 Euro

Introduction

Employee misconduct and disciplinary policies are among the areas that have the greatest impact on workplace stability, human resources governance, and the prevention of employment disputes. Modern organizations rely on an integrated legal and procedural framework that ensures organizational justice, protects rights, and strengthens compliance with laws, regulations, and internal policies.

This advanced training program builds professional knowledge of the legal and procedural aspects of employee misconduct, beginning with an understanding of the regulatory framework governing misconduct, progressing through mechanisms for monitoring, investigation, and evidence collection, and concluding with the issuance of disciplinary decisions and the management of grievances. It focuses on the principles of legality, impartiality, proportionality, privacy protection, and the application of disciplinary policies in a manner that achieves organizational justice and enhances discipline and transparency.

The Enhancing Legal and Procedural Knowledge of Employee Misconduct and Disciplinary Policies program aims to equip participants with an understanding of the legal and procedural framework governing employee misconduct and to apply disciplinary policies in accordance with best practices, ensuring procedural integrity, achieving organizational justice, reducing legal risks, and strengthening institutional compliance.
