Introduction:

First impressions are often made within seven seconds of a meeting and are challenging to reverse. This work ethics, etiquette, and behavior course aids in crafting a favorable first impression and navigates the subtleties of interacting with others in various business contexts, considering cultural and regional distinctions.

Since business engagements can extend to informal settings like meals, your dining skills can significantly influence perceptions of you as a potential partner. Over five days, you will gain insights into proper manners and business etiquette suitable for diverse scenarios. Additionally, we cover international protocol standards to prevent diplomatic incidents due to misunderstandings during formal events and visits.

This work ethics, etiquette, and behavior course elevates employees' professional presence by improving their work behavior skills, understanding their work behavior, and learning the fundamentals of work etiquette and ethics. It fortifies the participants' knowledge about the importance of proper conduct in the workplace, thus cultivating an environment that fosters respect, efficiency, and positive interactions among colleagues.
