International Contracting Management Conference

Ref.: 8196_256989 Date: 02 - 06 Jun 2025 Location: Munich (Germany) Fees: 4900 Euro

Introduction:

International contracting management has a complex web of values, customs, regulations, and laws that business parties from different countries must carefully navigate. Local Terms and Conditions may not hold the same weight in a foreign environment, thus necessitating an international outlook and adaptability in corporate strategies.

In this international contracting management conference, recognizing these distinct challenges aims to equip attendees with the necessary skills and knowledge. The program provides insights into Global Sourcing and International Contracting and focuses on effectively operating within the international business arena.

Participants interested in formally recognizing their proficiency can opt for a contract management certification program or certificate. These programs are designed to validate the expertise gained in contract management training, such as those offered at the conference.

Attendees at this international contracting management workshop may also explore further seminars or courses on contract management to deepen their understanding and elevate their skills as international contract managers or international contract managers in international contract management.
