Introduction:

Manpower planning is the strategic approach to forecasting and effectively managing an organization's workforce. This process involves a preliminary study to delineate the organization's goals, analyze the current workforce situation, and anticipate the need to augment or scale down staff based on future objectives.

By considering the structure and competencies of the existing staff, we can identify job roles and potential promotional pathways and make strategic staffing decisions. With this in mind, the Smart Business Center has meticulously crafted a comprehensive program that addresses workforce planning, process re-engineering, and evaluating performance effectiveness.
