Introduction:

Because, over and above operating profit, strategic finance management is concerned with how organizations may create corporate value and reflect the increased shareholder value to maximize shareholder wealth. All organizations aim to optimize operating profit by increasing revenue streams and reducing operating costs. An understanding of strategic finance management and the development of its associated financial skills further builds on that through the evaluation and adoption of the appropriate financial strategies necessary for an organization to survive, grow, and achieve its long-term objectives.

This advanced strategic finance management training course provides the participants with the essential skills and tools of financial strategy and corporate finance, which is concerned with effectively using financial resources to create corporate value. These skills are vital in today's global consumer and capital markets, where competition is fierce for investors and customers. In an era when strategic finance solutions are critical to business success, they facilitate an in-depth understanding of financial strategy and its role in shaping a company's future.

This advanced strategic finance management training course combines up-to-date theory with hands-on experience developing powerful financial models and tools. It equips the participants to take an active role in developing and applying financial and business strategies.
