Introduction:

One of the most important needs of the business world is the provision of specialized personnel in the field of business and Social Security. Although the demand for specialized personnel to meet the needs of enterprises in issues such as labor law, Social Security, taxation of wages and compensation, Occupational Health and safety, and payroll is high, there are few trained personnel in this field. This program aims to train a well-equipped 'Occupational and Social Security expert' who implements the applications in a way that is accurate and continuous and has both practical and technical knowledge and infrastructure.

Learn how to implement and apply legally defensible best practices in your organization. This two-day, interactive, case-study-centered seminar helps you gain confidence and expertise in dealing with complex employment law and employee relations issues. You'll gain a comprehensive overview of employee discrimination/EEO, and the Family and Medical Leave Act.
